HONORS PLAN OF STUDY ~ DEPARTMENT OF ENGLISH ~ Catalog Year 2015 & 2016

Name of Student_____ Student ID Number_____

Faculty Advisor _____ Expected date of graduation _____

Upon declaring their major, all honors scholars in English must execute, in consultation with the honors faculty adviser, a tentative version of this plan. It must be updated periodically to reflect all changes or additions, and the official copy will be maintained by the departmental adviser. A final version, endorsed by the adviser, must be filed with the registrar at the beginning of the semester in which the student would graduate, and will serve as the basis upon which the degree auditors will certify completion of diploma requirements. Once filed with the registrar, changes will be permitted only if approved by the adviser.

To graduate with Honors in English, a student must not only meet the requirements for all English majors, as set forth below, but also earn honors credits in the discipline. Students following the 2011–2012 catalogue year or earlier must earn twelve honors credits; students following the 2012–2013 catalog year or later must earn fifteen honors credits.

The culmination of the English Honors experience is the senior thesis, a two-semester project involving extensive reading and the completion of a substantial scholarly essay or creative project under the individual supervision of a faculty member. Students earn three honors credits for writing the thesis in their final semester (ENGL 4897); they can also earn up to three honors credits for a preparatory independent study course taken in the semester prior to the writing of the thesis (ENGL 3699). Enrolling in an independent study is highly recommended
